Topics to Note

Whatsoever Your Hand Findeth to Do,

Kevin Yoder

Whether you struggle to find inspiration in mundane tasks or are overwhelmed by a demanding schedule, practical teaching on the Biblical direction of serving "as unto the Lord" will help bring purpose to your life.

Conduct That Creates Trust, Markus Miller

Trust is the currency of relationships in the workplace. It is the medium of exchange that enables, sustains, and strengthens personal and professional bonds. Your conduct and responses will either build or erode the trust that your coworkers and leaders invest in you.

Recognizing Problems and Creating Solutions, Shane Iwashige

We all encounter problems, and sometimes our solutions only make the problems worse. Learning how to identify various types of problems and how to respond most effectively helps to minimize conflict and misunderstandings.

Problem Solving Exercise, Shane Iwashige

Now it is time to use the tools you were given in the previous topic. You will be given the opportunity to work with a group of your peers to find the best solution for a variety of real-world scenarios that have been gleaned from businesses in your area.

Let's Talk About It, Jason Glasgow

Lack of communication or miscommunications are the source of much heartache. Learn the art of effective communication habits that will help you become an active listener and enable others to understand you better.

Looking Beyond "Myself", John Auken

Is success determined by position? Does progress require self-promotion? Are the selfless rewarded? The timeless principles of the Golden Rule surpass every economic theory in practice and pay back.
